2023

Save the Sound®

Action for our region's environment.

Welcome!

Hello Neighbors,

2023 was a crucial year for Save the Sound as we grew our efforts to protect and restore the land, air, and water we all love. I'm excited to share in this Annual Report, our achievements that would not have been realized without you, our dedicated supporters. Thank you.

This year we brought down a dam to open 10 miles of habitat for fish and help restore the Norwalk River; piloted an eel grass planting effort in New York that could bring these critical underwater meadows back to the Sound after decades of loss; celebrated major wins for living shorelines and environmental justice in the New York and Connecticut legislatures respectively; took on the fossil fuel industry to fight climate change and polluters to clean up our rivers and beaches; and convinced a water company to preserve 5,000 acres of land in Northwest Connecticut. And those are only the highlights...!

Simultaneously, we began to put tactics into motion to achieve our five-year strategic plan, which is designed to have backyard results with Sound-wide impact:

Protect Bays and Harbors: One of our priorities is to shield 15 bays and harbors from the perils of sewage, stormwater, and plastics. Through innovative solutions and people power, we will ensure these vital marine ecosystems thrive for generations to come.

Revive River Systems: We have our eyes and efforts trained on the rivers that feed the Sound. Restoring six river systems will breathe new life into habitats and fish runs. These efforts will not only benefit fish, birds, and other living creatures but also provide increased recreational opportunities for you, and the thousands of others who enjoy fishing, swimming, kayaking, or simply soaking in views of these waters.

Restore Healthy Shorelines: We are determined to restore the resilience of 12 shorelines, offering safe havens for wildlife while bolstering neighborhood defenses against flooding. Our nature-based and engineered solutions will strike a harmonious balance between mother nature and the built environment.

Conserve Watershed Lands: In collaboration with partners, we will conserve 12,500 acres of Long Island Sound's watershed lands, creating a shield against, and filter for, pollution while preserving the area's natural beauty for generations.

Empower the Community: Harnessing the power of one million individuals, we will foster a grassroots movement that ignites widespread awareness and active participation. By empowering local residents, we aim to create a lasting legacy of environmental stewardship.

These ambitious yet achievable goals demonstrate our commitment to safeguarding Long Island Sound's ecological integrity. We invite you to join us in this journey towards a cleaner, healthier, and more resilient backyard.

Thank you for your continued support and partnership. Together, we can create a brighter and more sustainable future for all of our communities.

With gratitude,

Leah Lopez Schmalz
President

Dear Friends,

I'm delighted to share the successes of a transformative year. Amidst changes within Save the Sound and the broader world, our commitment to environmental conservation remained unshakable.

Leah Lopez Schmalz's inaugural year as President marked a new chapter of visionary leadership. Her guidance is leading us through a bold strategic plan, expanding our reach and impact. We welcomed exceptional new team members that bolstered our capabilities. Their expertise aligned seamlessly with our goals, enriching our programs and initiatives. We also relocated our New Haven headquarters to a larger and greener office space that will better meet our needs.

The world was also on the move, with changes like the Inflation Reduction Act, which is helping the US to meet its climate goals and strengthen energy security. It has influenced our work, and we're leveraging it to advocate for sustainability. The easing of Covid restrictions brought our team back to in-person events and closer to our constituents.

Throughout these transitions, Save the Sound has been a force for continuity. We celebrated habitat restoration, improved water quality in Long Island Sound, and empowered communities to champion their environments. As you will read in this report, 2023 was a year full of victories: we got 5,500 acres closer to permanent protection, expanded our Soundkeeper program way beyond pollution patrol, and made a difference for communities experiencing environmental racism, just to mention some.

Your support is our bedrock. Your dedication propels our work. Together, we're creating a future where our natural world thrives.

With warm wishes,

About Us

The mission of Save the Sound is to protect and improve the land, air, and water of Connecticut and New York communities in and around Long Island Sound. We use legal and scientific expertise and bring people together to achieve results that benefit our environment for current and future generations.

Our vision is of a Connecticut, New York, and Sound region where the vitality of nature will be protected for people and wildlife, now and for many decades to come. A region in which people from all walks of life can unite in transforming struggling habitats, polluted waters, endangered wildlife, and a threatened planet into resilient, healthy, vibrant, and inspiring places that sustain communities.

After nearly a decade in federal court, Save the Sound and Peconic Baykeeper finalized a settlement with the State of New York to reduce pollution into Long Island Sound and the Great South Bay from sanitary systems at five waterfront state parks on Long Island. The agreement will improve water quality for millions of beach and park users by abating discharges of nitrogen and pharmaceuticals into coastal waters from State-owned sanitary systems.

This ends a 2013 lawsuit against New York State Parks by our organizations after we filed a notice that operation of septic tanks and cesspools in Robert Moses, Sunken Meadow, Wildwood, Heckscher, and Belmont Lake State Parks was violating three federal environmental laws: the Clean Water Act, the Safe Drinking Water Act, and the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act.

The reductions in nitrogen resulting from the agreement will move the Great South Bay and Long Island Sound closer to meeting water quality standards and reduce hypoxia and harmful algal blooms.

Goodwin Dam gatehouse and the West Branch, or "Hogsback," Reservoir (picture at right) are part of 5,500 acres that are closer to permanent protection after an agreement between Save the Sound and the Northwest Connecticut Land Conservancy (NCLC) and The Metropolitan District (MDC). The land is located on the watershed tributary to the Colebrook Reservoir/West Branch Reservoir system, including 4,300 acres of open space land surrounding the Colebrook River Reservoir in Connecticut, and an additional approximately 1,200 acres in Massachusetts.

A Park 60 Years in the Making

Newhall, a historically Black neighborhood in Hamden, CT, has been deprived of access to nature. Six Lakes Park may be the answer to this problem.

The Six Lakes Park Coalition has been working for several years toward turning this 102-acre parcel, also known as Olin Powder Farm

(it's owned by the Olin Corporation), into a public park, open to all, and part of a larger network of green space and trails.

With your support, Save the Sound helps to coordinate the coalition's steering committee.

In 2022, a resolution passed unanimously by the Hamden Legislative Council states that it "shall support the environmental remediation and the conversion of the former Olin Powder Farm site to public access and public use as envisioned by the people of Southern Hamden."

“This neighborhood doesn't have a ton of open space. So, allowing people to have a public place to be in nature I think is just really restorative, and important for relaxing and not constantly being in an urban environment.”

- Justin Farmer, councilperson on the Hamden's Legislative Council and former Save the Sound board member.

Many residents of Westchester County don't realize that poorly maintained sewer pipes are a main reason why beaches are closed after rain and harvesting clams or oysters in local bays and harbors is prohibited.

In 2015, Save the Sound sued the violator municipalities and Westchester County for Clean Water Act transgressions. As a result, the towns and county have been studying their systems and making repairs. So far, nearly 1,000 miles of pipes are being repaired and over 74,000 defects fixed.

So far, we have settled with all municipalities other than New Rochelle, Town of Mamaroneck, Village of Larchmont, and Pelham Manor and are proceeding to litigation with these towns with trial likely in 2024.

253 Acres Saved!

You helped save 253 acres at Deer Lake in Killingworth, CT which is part of our strategic goals to preserve 12,500 acres of Long Island Sound's watershed lands by 2027.

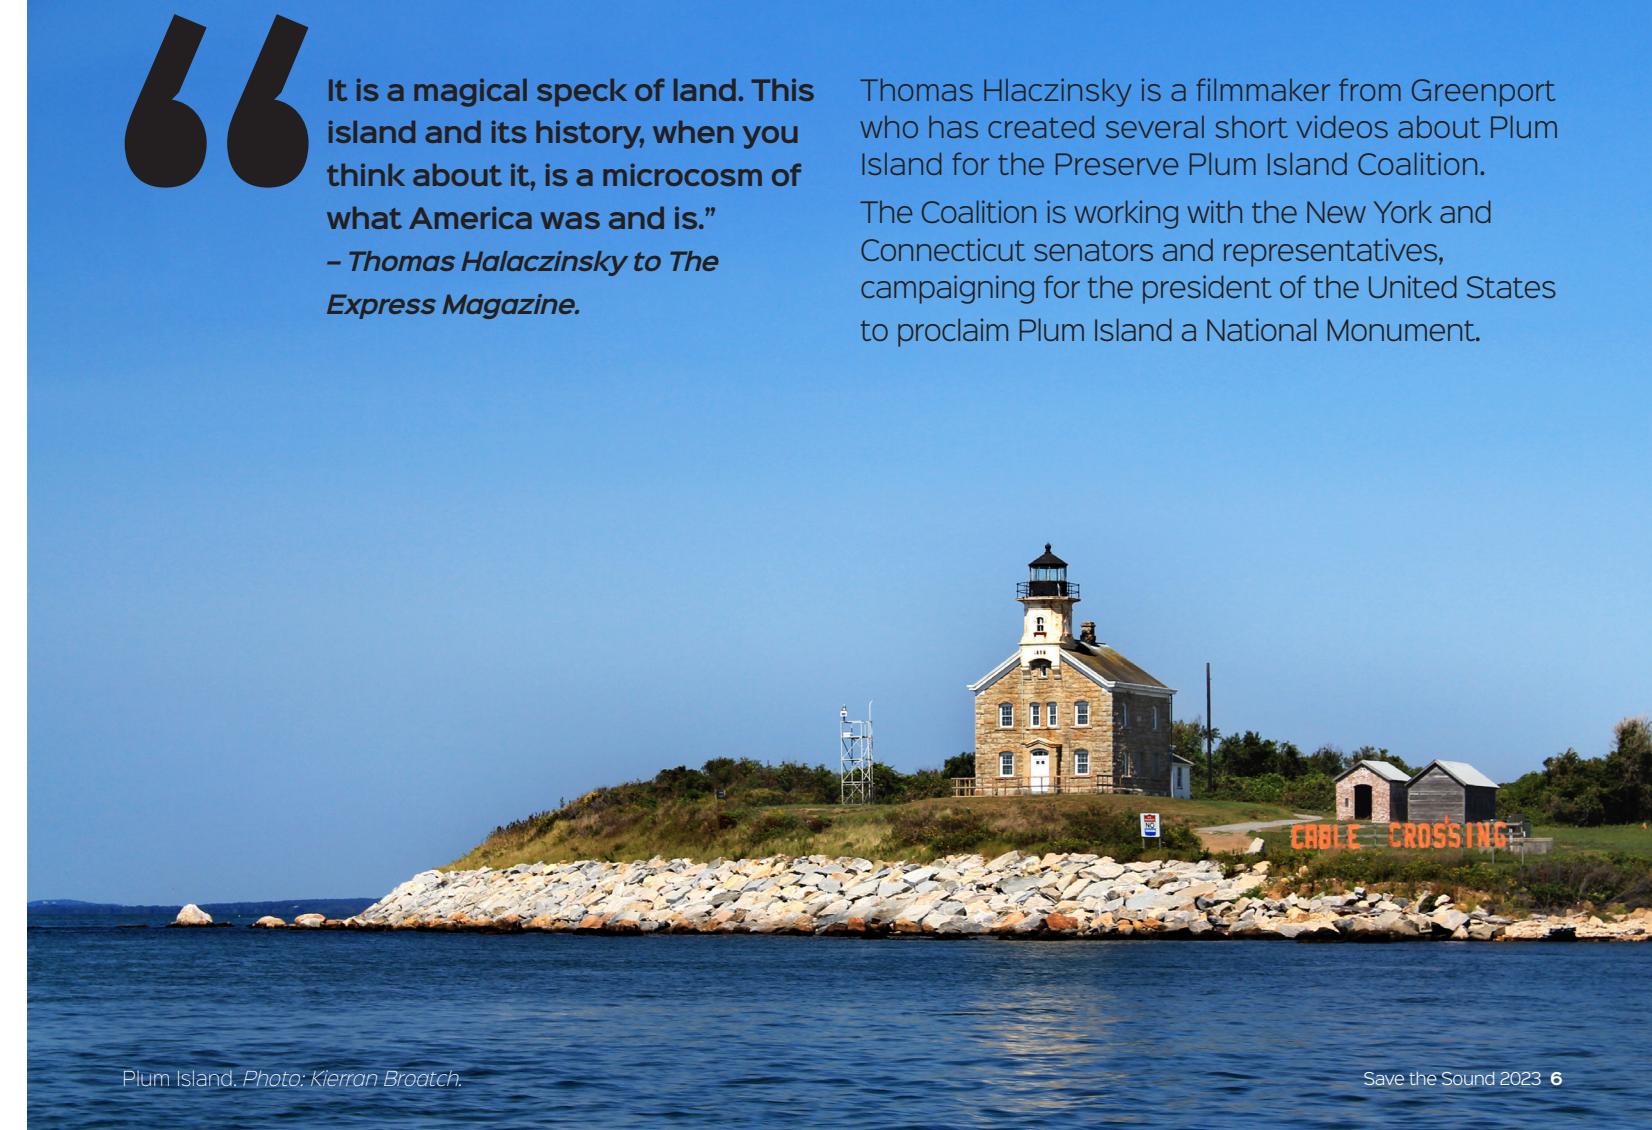

Save the Sound joined other conservation organizations and elected officials in a grassroots campaign to save the land from development. The nonprofit organization Pathfinders, which has led a summer camp on the property for decades, undertook a powerful fundraising campaign to beat a developer's offer and purchase the property from the Connecticut Yankee Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Nearly 400 of Save the Sound's members and supporters responded to our calls for action and helped spread the word and apply the pressure needed to make this sale possible. Go Save the Sound team!

Thomas Hlaczinsky is a filmmaker from Greenport who has created several short videos about Plum Island for the Preserve Plum Island Coalition.

The Coalition is working with the New York and Connecticut senators and representatives, campaigning for the president of the United States to proclaim Plum Island a National Monument.

Save the Sound is building an inventory of barriers to fish passage – such as dams and culverts – along rivers and streams throughout the portion of Westchester County that drains to Long Island Sound. Barriers like low-head dams and undersized or misaligned culverts block migratory and resident fish from accessing their spawning grounds. Before we can decide which barriers need to be removed or updated, we need to understand where they are and their degree of passability.

By prioritizing fish passage projects within Westchester County, we can better direct funding and energy to improve fish runs and biodiversity in our region.

DAMS!

Thanks to your continued support, Save the Sound is always investigating the possible removal of barriers on rivers in Westchester, Long Island, and Connecticut.

This fall we completed the removal of Dana Dam, aka Strong Pond Dam, in the Norwalk River, in Wilton, CT. This freed up nearly 10 upstream miles for fish passage, reconnecting a 14-mile stretch of free-flowing river with Long Island Sound.

Fish once again are able to swim upriver to their historic spawning grounds, restoring an integral part of Long Island Sound's foodweb and ecosystem.

In Rye, NY, we initiated a dam removal feasibility study for a dam on Blind Brook at Rye High School. This dam removal has the potential to reconnect 3.5 miles of migratory fish habitat for river herring and American eel along Blind Brook as it is the first barrier.

This year, we upgraded approximately 2.5 acres of land at Hamden Town Center Park from lawn to a large-scale rain garden to help filter stormwater, restore habitat, and create a greener and more resilient community. Rain gardens are green infrastructure that filter pollutants from stormwater runoff before it flows into the nearest waterbody. Native plants and layers of soil, sand, and rock act as sieves to remove harmful chemicals, toxins, and nutrients.

Volunteers worked hard to transform a lawn into a large-scale rain garden in Hamden, CT.

Beyond Pollution Patrol

In addition to the Soundkeeper's pollution patrols, our boats are on the water researching and restoring our marine environment.

The Eelgrass Restoration Project involves harvesting eelgrass seeds, gluing them to the shells of clams, and deploying them into Smithtown Bay, on Long Island. After six months, our Associate Soundkeeper Emma DeLoughry and Rob Vasiluth, our partner from SAVE Environmental, found the first evidence that the project works: a new eelgrass plant in Smithtown Bay. This may be the first one in decades!

Also, the Long Island Sound Lobster Trap Removal and Assessment Partnership (consisting of Save the Sound, Project Oceanography, The Maritime Aquarium at Norwalk, Cornell Cooperative Extension Program – Marine Program, and a handful of lobster boat captains) are removing long-abandoned lobster traps. In 2023 alone, we removed more than 500 traps from the bottom of Long Island Sound that were capturing all kinds of sea life like tautog, sea bass, and lobsters.

Impacting Overburdened Communities

Save the Sound coordinates the CT Coalition for Climate Action, comprised of environmental advocates, health experts, labor and municipal representatives, and others advocating for climate action in Connecticut.

This year, with the coalition, we helped pass Senate Bill 1147, An Act Concerning the Environmental Justice Program of the Department of Energy and Environmental Protection. The bill protects families' health and the environment by enhancing the State's environmental justice statute and providing the Department of Energy and Environmental Protection (DEEP) and the Connecticut Siting Council with the ability to deny permits for facilities that would worsen pollution in already-overburdened areas.

“ Passage of SB 1147 marks an important step in expanding health protections for our most vulnerable communities. Numerous health problems including asthma, heart disease, and some cancers are associated with environmental hazard exposures. Limiting these exposures is a win for Connecticut.”

- Dr. Sanjiv Godse, chair of the Connecticut Health Professionals for Climate Action, member of the CT Coalition for Climate Action.

Shaping the New Generation

Last summer, we hosted our largest intern cohort ever, with 10 interns working across our programs, from legal, to water quality, to climate. With your support, a new generation of environmentalists is learning from our 50 years of expertise.

“ I was fortunate to meet several Save the Sound attorneys throughout my undergraduate experience at Southern Connecticut State University, and my admiration of their work inspired me to pursue a career in environmental law. Now I have the exciting opportunity to work with and learn from the organization's attorneys. I am conducting legal research on a variety of pressing issues, drafting memoranda, researching emerging concerns, and learning about the legal tools available to help address them.”

- Brooke Mercaldi, legal intern.

Transforming the Hutchinson River Watershed

Protecting our rivers can be done in many different ways. One way is through watershed planning: a comprehensive, stakeholder-driven process of assessing the current health of a river and all of the lands that drain to it, as well as identifying possible interventions to eliminate sources of pollution or bolster ecosystem and community well-being.

The Hutchinson River, which runs through Westchester County and the Bronx, is in desperate need of this planning. So, Save the Sound and Westchester County are working closely with local stakeholders to develop the Hutchinson River Watershed Plan. With your support, we will transform this whole region.

Our 2023 Beach Report brought good news – 78% of the 207 Long Island Sound beaches received A or B grades – and bad: 22% got a C or lower. “This is not acceptable,” said David Ansel, our vice president of water protection. Scan the QR code to see your beach grades.

In Albany, the Living Shorelines bill passed. Our top legislative priority of the last two New York sessions was signed by Governor Kathy Hochul in September. This was a big win as the bill, now law, authorizes and encourages the use of nature-based solutions as the state's preferred alternative for stabilizing New York's tidal shorelines.

Jean Richards' (1934-2022) Fabulous Gifts to Save the Sound

When the government fails its duty to protect land, air, and water, federal and state environmental laws give citizens and nonprofit organizations like Save the Sound the authority to take action. Legal action has been a pillar of Save the Sound's effectiveness since our founding, and over the five decades since, we've consistently taken polluters to court and won.

Jean Richards, a visionary leader and trailblazer, played an instrumental role in recognizing and enhancing our uniquely effective legal work. Serving on our board from 1998 to 2005, she brought unwavering dedication and remarkably high standards to every endeavor.

During her tenure, Jean made significant contributions as a member of the finance committee. A pioneer in her own right, she shattered glass ceilings as a woman in the investment banking industry. Her pioneering spirit extended beyond gender boundaries, as she embarked on a journey to professionalize Save the Sound's financial landscape and bolster donor relations. In addition her financial acumen, Jean's connection to the cause was deeply personal. A seasoned sailor, she had grown up by the water, forging an unbreakable bond with nature's bounty.

A pivotal moment in Jean's legacy was her generous estate gift to the Barbara O. David Legal Director Endowment.

This contribution allowed our legal team to expand their work, facilitating the hiring of a skilled New York attorney. This strategic move broadened our capacity to advocate for environmental justice and legal protections on a larger scale.

Jean Richards leaves an indelible legacy, reminding us that leadership, dedication, and a pioneering spirit can ignite profound change. Her impact on our organization, both in the boardroom and beyond, will continue to inspire and drive us forward.

Our bond grew in adulthood as we both had an adventurous spirit, insatiable curiosity, and a strong moral code. These are the qualities that drove her to support Save the Sound, and she was grateful to be able to apply her business experience to the organization."

- Kirsten Richards Jacobsen Sibilia, Jean's niece.

Jean Richards influence was pivotal to Save the Sound. Here she enjoys a day on the water.

Thank You to Everyone Who Takes Action for our Environment

We deeply appreciate you, our dedicated supporters, for your unwavering commitment. Your generosity, advocacy, and hands-on involvement in our initiatives drive positive change for our region's environment. YOU make a real difference.

Fiscal Year 2021-22 Financial Report (October 1, 2021 - September 30, 2022)

Save the Sound continues to take action because of the generous support of many donors and funders who care about our region's environment and seek to change it for the better.

THANK YOU for your support during our 2021-22 fiscal year. Together we can ensure a healthy environment for the Long Island Sound region, in Connecticut and New York. Private funding from individuals and foundations is essential for our team to succeed. You will see that government grants are also an important part of our revenue, funding large projects. Donations and grants from individuals and foundations are leveraged by government awards and provide operational and program support, critical to making our work possible. Below is a summary from our Fiscal Year 2021-22 audited financial statement, the last year for which final financials were available at the time of publication.
